GLEBE SOCIETY'S 22ND BIRTHDAY CELEBRATIONS SATURDAY 15TH JUNE 1991

A free public concert to celebrate the Society's 22nd birthday will be held in the chapel of St Scholastica's School at 4.30pm on Saturday 15 June 1991. The concert, which will form part of the Glebe Winter Music Festival, will feature organ recitals by Professor Graeme Rawson and Dr David McIntosh (a member of the Society), and performances by the choirs of St Scholastica's and Christ Church St Laurence. The concert will be widely advertised in Glebe and the Society hopes that you will make a special effort to invite your friends and neighbours to attend.

Following the concert a cocktail party will be held from 6.00 to 7.30pm in the home of Ted and Alison McKeown, 397 Glebe Point Road. The toast to the Society will be proposed by Max Solling, a member of the Society, local historian and raconteur. Tickets will need to be purchased for the party and a form is enclosed with this Bulletin. Please note that concessions apply if tickets are purchased in advance.

THE JUBILEE FOUNTAIN

The Glebe Point Road Project Inc. has recently been awarded a grant from the 1990/91 National Estates Program to complete a heritage study which will assist the Project's plans for the restoration of the Jubilee Fountain and the items that make up the fabric of its site at the corner of Glebe Point Road and the Broadway.

Craig Burton has completed the first stage of his proposal, and the $1500 [$ for $] grant will enable the completion of Stage 2, which is for design and drawings, together with cost estimates. Details of his recommendations and options were set out in the 1990 April/May Bulletin.

The next task will be to encourage Leichhardt Council to undertake the work, assisted perhaps by community and grant funding. We might term this next stage -

THE GLEBE GATEWAY PROJECT.

NEIL MACINDOE ELECTED HONORARY LIFE MEMBER

Andrew Wood, President of the Society, gave the following address recommending Neil Macindoe's election as an honorary life member at a Special General Meeting of the Society on Sunday 5 May:

Neil joined the Society in 1976, soon after he and Jan came to live in Glebe. From that time he was one of these responsible for distributing the Society's Bulletin, which was then not posted to members but delivered by hand. I am sure that this part of his work for the Society gave him an excellent introduction to the streetscapes of Glebe and to the enormous breadth of architectural styles within our suburb.

In 1983 Neil was elected to the Management Committee of the Society and in the same year was made Vice-President. Later he was elected President of the Society, holding office for two years in 1983 and 1984. He continued to serve the Society, initially as immediate Past-President and then as Convenor of the Planning Sub-Committee.

Neil has always been a familiar sight in the streets of Glebe as he inspects the location of a new building or development application and talks to the affected neighbours and residents. Neil has one of the most enviable collections of berets and hats which are obviously purchased with great care and skill! The ones that I like best are those that give him a rather cherubic cuddly appearance and which have led to one of the more senior residents of Mitchell Street giving him the nickname of the "Garden Gnome".

In telling you of Neil's work for the Society, I would like to pay tribute to some of his special skills which include

- the outstanding knowledge he has of the architectural character of Glebe
- the considerable expertise he has developed about the complex working of the various local government planning controls, including the Local Environment Plan 20, which has enabled the Society to save so many of the buildings in Glebe from partial or complete demolition, and
- his negotiating skills which have assisted so much in the resolution of conflicts on planning matters between the Society, developers and Leichhardt Municipal Council

So, in conclusion I can simply say that over 15 years Neil has rendered extra-ordinary services to the management of the Society and I have no hesitation in asking that you fully support his election as an honorary life member of the Glebe Society.

The motion to elect Neil to life membership was proposed by Peter Strickland, seconded by Jeanette Knox, and carried by unanimous acclamation by all members.

PLANNING REPORT

Sugar's Timber Yard: Members may well wonder what is going on concerning this unsightly, smelly hole, vacant for several years. Two old shops were destroyed when the hole was dug and since then various plans have appeared, none of them entirely satisfactory. Now the mortgagee in possession has put in a development application without any consultation at all, so we are back where we started.

The major proposals for each end of Glebe Point Road - University Hotel and the Hardy's Timber site - also appear unlikely to proceed under the present owners for financial reasons.

Melbays: The present owners failed in an attempt to persuade the Land & Environment Court to approve an industrial development for the site. They have now applied to store scaffolding on the site, while at the same time circulating plans to residents that show the same excessive residential density with prettier facades. The Society will continue to back residents in their opposition to these proposals.

Minogue Reserve & other parks: The Society has received assurances that work will begin on this pathetic patch of park in July. Among Council's projected works for 1991 is the first stage of a new children's playground in Jubilee Park along the lines of the Bruce McKenzie plan.

Marchant's Garage site: This prominent Bridge Road site will have 12 new town houses according to plans approved by the Land & Environment Court.

Department of Housing: Unfortunately, now that the Inner City Project Team has been dismembered and moved to Liverpool, the architects who worked so hard to produce good quality infill in Glebe are unable to supervise the few remaining sites effectively. Many complaints have been received about 132 Glebe Point Road, so the sub-committee will try to secure some improvements.

St Ita's: This hall-church has a gloomy, undistinguished exterior but is quite attractive inside and has very strong associations with the local community. The Society has resisted its demolition and it is now proposed for commercial use. The sub-committee will keep a close eye on this site, which is quite large, to ensure there is no adverse effect on the local residents and Conservation Area.

Glebe Library: Efforts to find a new location for the branch library have not been successful so far and the roof of the present building will be repaired.

Estate agencies: Members have pointed out that estate agencies are among the worst offenders in display of unsympathetic signs detracting from the heritage character of Glebe Point Road. Dank's Pharmacy on the corner of Cowper Street has recently fallen victim to Richardson & Wrench, who have chosen a very inappropriate paint scheme. We hope the Glebe Point Road Project will be able to persuade this and other agents to show a good example rather than be outstanding for poor taste.

WENTWORTH PARK

Christine Stewart

On 12 April we received a letter from Mr Rowland-Smith, Minister for Racing in the Greiner Government. In it he stated that his responsibility was to protect the interests of the greyhound racing industry.

He cited the amount of revenue the industry brings for the Government, the large stake the Government has in the Wentworth Park complex, and made the statement that the parking fee charged at Wentworth Park is equal to the highest at any racecourse in the State (it is $2). He said that if the proposed Wattle Street car park was to be used the main gates of the racecourse would have to be relocated and the Racecourse Development Fund could not be used for this purpose.

We have replied expressing our dismay that no attempt at all had been made to address the problem of finding a solution to the parking problem or the problem of damage to the Park by impaction from car parking. We also questioned whether removal of parking from the grass to an all-weather, secure car park would result in loss of patronage.

As well we questioned the statement that the Racecourse Development Fund could not be used to relocate the gates of the actual racecourse, when it could be used to build offices for his department in the complex (costing over $4m).

As his colleague, Gary West, Minister for Lands, will be making the final decision, we have also written to him with our concerns and have requested a meeting with him. We understand there have been several meetings between members of the government and representatives of the greyhound racing industry but none at all with local groups, such as the Residents Advisory Committee for Wentworth Park or the Glebe Society.

On Wednesday 8 May Christine Stewart on behalf of this Society and Max Solling and others on behalf of the Residents Advisory Committee met with Dawn Fraseer, Sandra Nori to be photographed for ABC TV for a small segment on the State election in this area. Both Dawn Fraser and Sandra Nori expressed strong support for our stand on Wentworth Park. Sandra Nori said Mr Carr, Leader of the Opposition, deplored the fact that the Society had been told by Michael Cleary that he too supported the stand of the greyhound industry and stated that the Labor Party now supported the removal of cars from the Park.

The Residents Advisory Committee has written to all local candidates with a list of questions relating to the issue, asking them what their stand was on the Park and saying that their replies would be published in local papers.

The following article from The Western Suburbs Courier is an excellent summary of another recent development - the SPCC report and Sydney smog.

'Serious effects in west': SPCC runway report

THE State Government has "white-washed" a confidential SPCC report on the third runway which predicts serious adverse environmental effects for the inner west.

The document has stated that potential nitrogen oxide emissions are "of very great concern", according to an action group spokesman.

By Michelle Friedland

"The State Government has responded to the SPCC report on air quality by wanting to instal a monitoring system. What has been outlined would have a significant adverse affect on the environment," secretary of Citizens Revolt Against Sound Harrassment (CRASH), Geoff Grace, said.

Mr Grace said the SPCC report contained damaging material which should have been highlighted in the government submission.

The Courier has received a copy of the SPCC document, which has found that suburbs around Kingsford Smith airport would face the impact of high levels of nitrogen oxide.

Marrickville, listed in the draft EIS, has a projected level of NOx six times the National Health and Medical Research Council goal during the worst months.

"The prediction does not include contributions from other sources in the locality. Hence, potential NOx emissions from airport operation are of very great concern," it states.

It says levels of the pollutant predicted for the local area are "somewhat conjectural" and "not the worst case" because emissions during take off and elevation of 650 m, 47 per cent of total NOx emissions, were not included.

And peak aircraft movements and unfavourable weather conditions could result in even poorer air quality.

The report also found that the draft EIS did not give details of the effects of respirable particulates, particles which lodge deep in the lung, and have been linked with asthma and bronchities.

The report says the predictions are "only of limited value" as they only include aircraft operations, not contributions from other sources.

It recommends an air quality monitoring program be commenced at the airport to ensure environmental health criteria are achieved in accordance with NH & MRC goals.

The State Government submission stated: "According to the draft EIS, emissions resulting from the growth in the use of the airport will in the longer term, be two or three times greater than the present levels, but they will still be a very minor component of total regional air emissions output.

"They are, however, predicted to have significant local effects and this aspect will require management measures."

Environmental consultant, Dr Fred Bell, said it appeared the report "must have been ignored" by the State Government.

He said although the government report gave the impression there was "not very much to worry about, the data tells a different story".

Dr Bell said a monitoring program should have been set up previously.

He has found that the predicted levels were "very much greater" than safe levels.

Inner west suburbs such as Tempe and Sydenham and Marrickville would be badly affected by very serious noise, air pollution and crash risks, he said.

Tempe, Sydenham would have even higher levels of air pollution than Marrickville.

He said the third runway would result in three times the amount of air traffic in the inner west.

An SPCC spokesman said it was "inappropriate" to comment. He said although there were working documents considered by a panel, the only official document was the state government submission.

"The official SPCC document is not official. It might be full of flaws," he said.

SPCC Director, Dr Warrick Forrest, said the Commission was satisfied that the check list of concerns was addressed in the government submission.

He said some proved of "less consequence" after a working party was held on the third runway.

Dr Forrest said the State government favoured a third runway and the monitoring system would minimise damage.

Environmental Issues in USA can be subject to legislation by Congress that includes steps for proponents and set goals to be achieved. Scientific measures are used and criteria pollutants are researched every ten years. Accountability is a feature. Unfortunately, Australian governments have shown little interest in knowing the ambient conditions of environments; Australian methodology could be described as a lot of talk before issues drop out of sight.

Three documents require attention. Both the draft Botany Bay Regional Policy Guidelines (NSW Dept Planning 1991) and the NSW Govt. submission to the draft EIS on the third runway comment on space around KSA. Part of the submission is quoted here: "The construction of the third runway and the implementation of the Sydney Airport Draft Strategy Plan will create a demand for additional off-site airport related land uses. The State Government will maintain its present commitment to ensure that adequate planning provision is made for these land uses. Similarly the State Government will be reviewing policies for residential areas which will experience higher or lower levels of aircraft noise" Jane Weder, for SSAC, comments the impact of the proposed 3rd runway was not just the tarmac and the aircraft noise, but expansion of businesses, like tentacles, into surrounding areas. Several questions arise. What are the costs involved in expanding tiny KSA? How far would expansion creep? Who benefits?

Who is disadvantaged? Is this a suitable way to achieve a major aviation facility, or is Badgery's Creek open space the more appropriate step?

The third report at hand is the Olympic Games 2000 Report, 10.11.91. Special landing/docking restrictions would require answers. Yes, its the curfew at KSA in focus once again.

SSAC, ACT and others met with the FAC, Kinhill, & DASETT recently. Observers attended from Dept. of State Development and from Planning, Dept. of Transport & Communication and the CAA. Dr. Don McMichael, former secretary of Dept. of Environment was chairman. Wide-ranging discussions took place, questions were asked and new items raised in a lengthy meeting. DASETT will have a role in the final EIS, which is a change of circumstances. A report from the meeting will acquaint the Minister for the Environment with issues the community would like addressed. (The Minister has not replied to the Society's letter endorsing calls for a public enquiry into the proposal)

John Buckingham won SSAC's raffle prize - a week's accomodation at a holiday location!

To do Please write to the Prime Minister regarding further and very serious deterioration of inner-Sydney's air quality if the third runway were to proceed. Please send a copy to the Premier of NSW.

Movement on several fronts was characteristic of Diggers in World War 1 and the memorial sub-committee has also been actively moving and following up several lines of action that are likely to be fruitful for the Society's restoration aims.

It is particularly pleasing to note the interest and actions of the Leichhardt Municipal Council. The Town Clerk, Mr Alan Woodward, responded to our communication and has asked that the Society let him know if it has any proposals regarding the memorial. He also advise of Council action to "tidy up" in time for Anzac Day. Many will have observed with appreciation that Council did do this and more. The railings and fences adjacent to the mausoleum were painted and the paving around it was freshened up. The two lamp standards outside are fitted with the proper lamp spheres.

The Town Clerk refers to concern that vandalism may well recur and others have the same concern. In a booklet produced by the Queensland branch of the RSL, the point is made that vandalism is more likely to occur to memorials which are clearly neglected. Accordingly, the greater interest now being shown in the Glebe memorial should help to minimise the risk of further vandalism.

How can the removed or damaged statuettes be accurately restored if funds become available?

The sub-committee has received photocopies of original documentation of the memorial including pictures, mostly distant, from a group in the Australian National University which researched our memorial as part of a bicentennial project to document national war memorials. In addition we have a few photo slides, details from which have been picked out and enlarged by Flash Graphics of Balmain. The large prints resulting were made for us by Flash at a special discounted price and their support has been much appreciated.

The detail seen in these prints is our best resource as yet to enable the making up of accurate representations. But we hope that more pictures will yet come to light, and we trust that members and other readers will try hard to locate photographs or other relevant records.

Dr David McIntosh is organising the second Glebe Music Festival, which all members of the Society and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

At the 1911 census few building plots remained in Glebe: its 21,943 residents lived in 4,202 houses. The denizens of Glebe developed strong sentiments of belonging to their territory, and extended family relationships laid the basis for community solidarity. Community feeling was reinforced and promoted by local churches and schools, pubs, and a random collection of social, sporting and charitable organisations.

While the sense of community remained strong within particular closely knit neighbourhoods, there were great inequalities in housing, in income and in political power within the suburb. The people who lived at Glebe Point inhabited a different world to those who lived at the suburb's other extremity; their paths rarely crossed.

Local shops met a variety of needs - but just what did they provide?

To extract information at random from Sands' Directory is to transform conventional occurrences into human activities of a different dimension. Between 1912 and 1914 the following range of shops could be found along Glebe Road:
